DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is in response to applicants' communication filed on December 3, 2005. Claims 1-8 are currently pending in the application and have been examined.

The rejections and response to arguments are stated below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter, which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 2 and 6-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 2 recites steps a-d. It is not clear where and how these steps fit in, in relation to claim 1. Similarly claim 7 recites step a. It is not clear where and how this step fits in, in relation to claims 5 and 6. Similar ambiguity is present in claim 8. Appropriate clarification/correction is required. In view of these ambiguities, the examiner is unable to provide an art rejection for these claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1, 3-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Guppy (Reference U).

Art Unit: 3624

Claims 1, 4 and 5, Guppy discloses a method for providing downside protection of stock market investments for managing an investment portfolio comprising the steps of: using a stop loss percentage for the security, multiplying the stop loss percentage by a high value for the security and subtracting the resulting product from the high value to generate a sell threshold price, comparing the sell threshold price to the market price, and executing a sell event when the market price is below the sell threshold price (See the disclosure of Guppy) These steps known as trailing stop loss technique are old and well known to one of ordinary skill in the investment art. These steps help investors minimize their losses while allowing them to benefit from rising security prices. (For the purpose of illustration and explanation of the trailing stop loss technique applicants may also see the E*TRADE article. Even though the date of publication of this article is unknown it illustrates the concepts and details of the trailing stop loss technique). A computer-readable medium and a system for conducting these steps are old and well known in the art.

Guppy does not explicitly teach the steps of entering a name of a security into the automated data processing system through the input device; storing the name of the security in the memory; entering data for the security into the automated data processing system through the input device; storing the data for the security in the memory; entering a buy price of the security into the automated data processing system through the input device; storing the buy price of the security in the memory as the high value; linking the automated data processing system by a data link to current stock information; and reading a market price of the security from the current stock information.

Art Unit: 3624

Official notice is taken that these steps are old and well known in the investment and trading art. These steps help automate the trading process with minimum human intervention.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to include these steps to the disclosure of Guppy. The combination of disclosures suggests that investors would have benefited from automating the trading process with minimum human intervention.

Claim 3, the step of printing a summary of the sell information when the sell event occurs is also old and well known. This step provides a record of the sale and helps in the audit trail of the transaction.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to pending claims 1-8 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
